To Whom It May Concern:

As a Head Wrestling Coach one of my greatest fears is to have a controllable element become a factor in close dual meet. With skin infections on the rise I have taken every precaution to make sure those issues are not a factor in the outcome of our matches.

After spending two years of mopping multiple times in a day and still battling skin issues we decided to take our protection to the next level. We didn't want to get to the middle of the season and look back and wish we could have done more. At the start of the 2011-2012 season we brought in an Authorized Service Provider of the Max-Defense System, Certified Maintenance Service, to provide us with a Max-Defense treatment to the Chattanooga Wrestling facilities. The Max-Defense treatment was applied to our wrestling room, weight room, and locker room. To this point our skin infections have dropped tremendously and we can confidently go thru the year knowing we have done all we can to give our athletes the best opportunities possible.

If your program is looking to take infection control to the next level then I would suggest you go on the offense to battle skin infections with Max-Defense.
